BRAND STORY

Temper is dedicated to the preservation of British craftsmanship, thoughtful living and purposeful design. Our guiding principle is that products should be made to last, cared for then passed to the next generation. We believe this is achieved through timeless design, British manufacturing, locally sourced and fully recyclable, high-quality materials. We hold quality in the highest regard and stand confidently by our product range, because premium products require less maintenance and enjoy a longer lifespan.

Designed and manufactured in Leicestershire, our fixtures are a quiet rebellion against fast, disposable design. Every fixture we produce is made from locally sourced materials. Our industrial-modern aesthetic takes inspiration from 20th-century lighting and streamlined with cleaner lines.

Temper exists to keep well-designed lighting in circulation — long after trends have faded.

HOW IT ALL BEGAN

Over 10 years ago, Andy and Vic began restoring vintage industrial lights after an eye-opening trip to Bangladesh to see where some of the world's largest cargo ships are sent to be broken down. This was the birth of their business Loomlight, specialising in vintage industrial lighting. They sell the lights to TV and Film productions, commercial clients and private customers worldwide and continue to do so.

Through conversations with clients at Loomlight, they observed a growing demand for high quality industrial-style fixtures which came as a response to the market being saturated with imported lights made from cheap materials, lacking design innovation from faceless brands. So, Andy set to work designing and manufacturing their own fixtures based on popular mid-century industrial designs they had been salvaging.

The year 2025 sees the start of their new brand Temper which is dedicated to making industrial style lights, streamlined with clean lines, designed and made in England for people that understand that great product design transcends trends.
